This year's flagship event of Asia Insurance Review will explore the changing dynamics of digital transformation in insurance. Disruption is no longer the only strategic scenario debated by insurance executives. Increasingly, decision-makers examine the need and scope for digitally enabling existing value chains, co-operating rather than competing with InsurTechs. Besides positioning their organisations for these scenarios CEOs face the necessity of preserving their current sources of revenue which are still largely derived from traditional products sold via traditional channels.

Against this backdrop, the 2019 edition of the Asia CEO Insurance Summit will focus on the following three challenges and opportunities:

1. How to make insurance organisations fit for the digital future: Priorities and trade-offs
2. How to prepare for different technology scenarios: Disruptive versus enabling
3. How to generate new and more business by harnessing technology

As opposed to previous years, the conference will feature fewer but more in-depth speeches and panel contributions. In addition, in order to promote interaction we will be introducing workshop-style elements.

Our speakers and panellists will offer a balanced perspective, including global, regional and local aspects, shared by incumbent insurance, InsurTech and technology executives.
