Being 40 is itself a Benchmark of Success

The IIS Annual Seminar turns 40 this year. For humans, it is the age of self-seeking and re-defining one's goals to a better fit with reality.

For a revered institution like the IIS, renowned for providing the vital pro-active platform for hot-housing practical ideas nurtured through keen interaction between global insurance practitioners at the highest level and the insurance academics, turning 40 is a milestone, itself a benchmark of success.

The IIS Annual Seminar, which draws a veritable glitterati of names from the insurance industry from all around the world, is THE place to be to get new visionary ideas and ageless wisdom distilled through the best breweries of experience and track record.

At the 40th Seminar, in London, widely still viewed as the Mecca, if not the Bethlehem of insurance, the expectations are even higher. As Lord Levene, Chairman of Lloyd's and Chairman of the Board of Governors for the London Seminar says: "We are in a New Era of Risk". So let us raise the gauntlet to salute the search to find "effective, integrated strategies for dealing with tomorrow's risks" with a "change in culture at the highest level".

It should once again all start here in London, with the ageless chime of the Big Ben.

All of us in the industry can take pride in these achievements. However, like so many great accomplishments, there is no doubt that the developments of our industry have a lot to do with the efforts of organisations like the IIS, which act as a catalyst to connect those in the insurance world.
